inflation the nature of the pressure depends on the formation of expectations an issue central to current developments the yield curve now incorporates a risk premium whose fluctuations have been central to the crisis especially since quantitative easing policies have shown that monetary policy can affect this premium olivier blanchard studied at the university of paris nanterre and has taught at mit since 1983 he was chief economist at the international monetary fund from 2008 to 2015 he is now a senior fellow at the peterson institute for international economics francesco giavazzi is professor of economics at bocconi university in milan and has been a regular visiting professor at mit alessia amighini is assistant professor of economics at universita del piemonte orientale novara

the ongoing economic crisis has revealed fundamental problems both in our economic system and the discipline which analyses it this book presents a series of contrasting but complementary approaches in economic theory in order to offer a critical toolkit for examining the modern capitalist economy the global economic crisis may have changed the world in which we live but not the fundamental tenets of the discipline this book is a critical assessment of the relation between economic theory and economic crises how intellectual thinking impacts on real economic events and vice versa it aims at challenging the conventional way in which economics is taught in universities and later adopted by public officials in the policymaking process the contributions all written by distinguished academics and researchers offer a heterodox perspective on economic thinking and analysis each chapter is inspired by alternative theoretical approaches which have been mostly side lined from current academic teaching programmes a major suggestion of the book is that the recent economic crisis can be better understood by recovering such theoretical analyses and turning them into a useful framework for economic policymaking economic crisis and economic thought is intended as a companion to economics students at the master's and phd level in order for them to confront issues related to the labour market the financial sector macroeconomics industrial economics etc with an alternative and complementary perspective it challenges the way in which economic theory is currently taught and offered via alternatives for the
